Attempt To Stem Drive Made
By Russians On The Kharkov Front

OFFENSIVE IS GROWING

Claim Road of Nazi Retreat is Littered With Corpses and Equipment

MOSCOW, May 15—(INS)—German reserves rushed to the Kharkov front in an attempt to stem the furious drive by inspired Russian armies against the key city of the Ukraine were reported reeling back in retreat today.

The Germans were said to have thrown in numerous reserves without giving them any rest at the end of long marches to the front in an unsuccessful effort to stem the steam-roller advance of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's armies.

(Editor's Note: Axis reports stated that a new attack had been started by the Russians against Pokrovsk, deep in the Donets Basin 15 miles north of the port of Taganrog. An effective assault in this sector would prevent possible German attempts to skirt the northern shore of the Sea of Azov for a drive against Rostov and on into the oil-rich Caucasus.)

The newspaper Izvestia, official government organ, said the offensive was growing in intensity and that the road of the German retreat was littered with corpses and guns, tanks and other equipment either destroyed or abandoned.

Supported by mighty squadrons of Stormovik bombers, the Soviet tank, artillery and infantry forces drove steadily forward against Kharkov, important industrial city in the Donets Basin.

The Red Army newspaper Red Star declared that the Russians had recaptured a number of towns and villages, including large centers of resistance, in the Kharkov sector.

"MOTHER" AND "SON" BELIEVED TO HAVE "REIMBURSED" THEMSELVES DURING ABSENCE OF EMPLOYER

PINEVILLE, May 15—In "compensation" for a few days' work on the estate of a Bucks County family, a "mother" and "son" are believed to have been "reimbursed" with a variety of goods—valued at $1465. The unusual rate of pay is due to the fact they are thought to have selected their own form of "remuneration" when the family was not at home.

BRITISHERS LIVING UNDER "ALL-OUT WAR"

Rationing Effects Most of Average Person's Activities

GOODS UNOBTAINABLE

(Note: International News Service herewith presents the last of a series of three articles giving the first comprehensive picture of Britain in the third year of war.—INS.)

By Charles A. Smith
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, May 15—(INS)—"Austerity" living has dealt Mr. Average Briton numerous severe body blows in recent months. Today he is rapidly approaching the point where he will be living under total war conditions.

Particularly is this true in regard to rationing, travel, and entertainment.

Rationing affects most of the average Briton's activities and many unrationed goods are rare or unobtainable. Virtually all foods, with the major exceptions of bread, vegetables, and fish, are rationed.

Before the war, Mr. Average Briton consumed half a pound of meat a day. Today he gets two ounces, if he is fortunate. Vegetables, except potatoes, are rationed.

Form Two New Defense Groups In State

HARRISBURG, May 15—(INS)—The formation of two new civilian defense groups in Pennsylvania was announced today by the State Defense Council. They will be known as the U. S. Citizens Service Corps and the Auxiliary Group, it was disclosed.

The first group was formed by the U. S. Office of Civilian Defense to give recognition to tens of thousands of citizens who serve 50 hours or more as volunteer in non-protective phases of civilian war activity. Such persons will be eligible for membership and entitled to wear lapel buttons or arm insignia featuring a red 'V' in the center of a white triangle, with the letters 'CD' in red at the side.

The Service Corps will be distinct from the Citizens Defense Corps, in which 361,570 Pennsylvanians are already enlisted as air-raid wardens, auxiliary police and firemen and other protective volunteers who receive special training for action during air raids and blackouts.

Eligible for Service Corps membership are persons active in salvage, victory garden, rationing, consumer committee, American unity, physical fitness and similar civilian defense programs.

The auxiliary group will include limited numbers of doctors, nurses, newspaper reporters, photographers, clergymen, undertakers, telephone and telegraph operators, and operators of essential transportation facilities. Members will be eligible for special armbands or automobile markers to permit them to move about on necessary duties during blackouts and air raids.

When Gerald Sowler McGimsey and his wife returned this week from a few days' trip to Virginia, they found their two recently-hired servants missing, together with an expensive wrist watch, a Buick sedan, sterling silver table service and other pieces of sterling silver, valuable dishes, and a sable neck-piece.

McGimsey, whose summer home is located on the Pineville-Lahaska Road, answered an advertisement appearing in a New York newspaper of May 3rd. It read: "Mother and son, cook and house work; son capable of doing work for summer resort or country home—Apply Box (So and So)."

Mr. McGimsey answered the advertisement, and on the 5th of May the "mother" contacted him at his New York office, making an appointment for an interview. She and her son, it appeared, were staying at the Hotel Plaza, New York, as they awaited a "connection" somewhere in the country.

The woman appeared at McGimsey's office alone, and impressed the Bucks countian. She and her son were immediately hired.

"Mother" is about 43, with brown hair, well built and about five feet five inches tall. She has large blue eyes and very attractive white teeth and talks with a decided New England accent.

"Son" is about seventeen, 5 feet, 11 inches tall, and is a native of New England.

HULMEVILLE

Jesse Cope, Lansdale, will show motion pictures of "The Bombing of London," and also speak at a meeting to be held in Wm. Penn Fire Co. station next Thursday evening at 8:15 o'clock. He will be assisted by John Graham, air raid warden of Zone 5, Montgomery County. All emergency police, air raid wardens, Red Cross and first aid workers, are particularly urged to be present, and any others who desire are invited to attend.

MARRIAGE APPLICATIONS

Joseph D. Sine, 29, 120 North Sixth street, Perkasie, and D. Claire Duncker, 30, 247 High street, Sellersville. Charles W. Bright, 21, Holly avenue, South Langhorne, and Mildred Lowe, 19, Morrisville, R. D. Joseph Calli, 25, Quakertown, and Ruth Kline, 21, Quakertown. John J. Vincent, 21, Philadelphia, and Eugenia V. Humler, 21, 6022 Tacony street, Philadelphia.

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

U. S. NAVAL TRAINING STATION, NEWPORT, R. I., May 15—Inspired by his brother and cousin, already in the U. S. Navy, Charles L. Heath, anxious for a Naval career, has left high school and has enlisted in the Regular U. S. Navy. Today, he is going through the paces of intensive recruit instruction at the U. S. Naval Training Station, Newport, Rhode Island.

With his brother, Joseph, 24, a Second Class Water Tender, and his cousin, Edwin A. Hamilton, 25, an ensign in the Fleet Reserve, the new Bluejacket is anxious to emulate these men in the service.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Heath, of Bath Road, Bristol, the new Bluejacket, hoping to win a Machinist's Mate's rating, is working hard absorbing the essentials of seamanship at the Station.

Attending Bristol high school for two years in 1940, and 1941, he was a member of the Rambler, school publication. He was also a member of the Elks of Bristol.

As soon as the Bluejacket has completed his strenuous recruit instruction period, he will be assigned either to shore duty, sent to one of the 54 Naval trade schools, or be assigned to serve with the U. S. Fleet at sea.

Theda M. VanSciver Dies Suddenly At Age of 22

Bristol young woman, 22 years of age, died suddenly yesterday, when Miss Theda M. VanSciver, 632 Spruce street, passed away at her parents' home. Ill but two days, death came as a shock to her family and friends.

She was the daughter of Fred M. and Ella M. VanSciver. Miss VanSciver was assistant organist at Zion Lutheran Church. She was a native of Bristol.

A sister, Miss Doris M. VanSciver, and a brother, John C. VanSciver, survive, in addition to the parents.

The Rev. Paul R. Ronge, pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, will conduct the funeral service from the VanSciver home, on Sunday at one o'clock. Further service will be held in Zion Lutheran Church at two o'clock. Friends may call Saturday evening. Burial will be made in Bristol Cemetery, with George Molden, funeral director, in charge.

DUMP FIRE

Bristol Consolidated firemen were called last night to extinguish a fire at the borough dump.

DR. FARRIS DISCUSSES "PERPETUAL EMOTIONS"

Tells Exchangeites How Emotions
Are Measured by Blood Tests

PICTURES OF OPOSSUMS

Dr. Edward J. Farris, executive director of the Wistar Institute, Emille, presented a very interesting program at the weekly meeting of the Exchange Club in the Elks' Home, last evening, when he talked and showed slides on "Perpetual Emotions." Vice-President Walter Pitzonka was in charge of the meeting.

The speaker pointed out that emotions are measured by blood tests and he gave many illustrations of the variations in emotions of students and athletes.

A picture on the habits of the opossum was also presented by Dr. Farris, who explained that these animals are used in experiments because of their similar reactions to those of human beings.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Rationing and Reason

Washington, May 14. THE inevitable dislocation of the individual lives of the citizens from a governmental curtailment of gasoline as drastic as has been made, was, of course, foreseen. But people generally did not begin to realize it until after the restrictions actually went into effect.

Complete realization has not yet come—but it will.

TERRIFIC INCONVENIENCE, and even hardship, will certainly accompany complete operation. Nevertheless, there will be no public resentment nor complaint—providing only that two things are done. First, there should be given to the country a simple, truthful and concrete statement of the facts. Second, the rationing must be done

Mrs. Thomas T. Toombs, 78, Dies Yesterday in Newtown

NEWTOWN, May 15—A woman of 78 years, Mrs. Mary G. Toombs, died at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Rockhill, here, yesterday. She was the widow of Thomas T. Toombs, who for many years conducted a barber shop in this borough.

Mrs. Toombs is survived in addition to her daughter, Mrs. Rockhill, by a son, Delbert Toombs, Newtown, who is now on a tanker plying the Atlantic coast; a sister, Mrs. Jennie Angle, Belvedere, N. J.; and a half-sister, Mrs. Irene Howard, Baltimore, Md. The deceased had resided here for 38 years. The Rev. C. J. Buzzard, pastor of Newtown Methodist Church of which Mrs. Toombs was a member, will officiate at the service at the Rockhill home, 100 Center avenue. Burial in Newtown Cemetery will be in charge of R. L. Horner, funeral director. Friends may call Saturday evening from seven to nine o'clock.

BUSINESS MEN O. K. JULY 4TH CELEBRATION

Hearty Approval Given At Monthly Meeting Held
Last Evening

TO CLOSE WEDNESDAYS

Members of the Mill Street Business Men's Association, meeting in monthly session at the Keystone Hotel, last evening voted unanimously to close their places of business every Wednesday afternoon and evening during the summer months of June, July and August.

Hearty approval of the proposed big Fourth of July demonstration to be held in Bristol this year was voiced by members of the Association when they endorsed the program. Details of the Association's part in the demonstration have not as yet been completed. It is believed, however, that the Association will play an active role in the demonstration.

Approximately twenty-five members were on hand last evening, the largest recorded attendance in the last three years. President Edgar Spencer was in the chair.

The Wednesday afternoon and evening closing program will start the first Wednesday in June and continue through to the end of August. The practice was started several years ago, and the unanimous vote of those members present last evening means that it will be continued this year.

State Treasurer To Authorize Payments

State Treasurer, G. Harold Wagner, announces that having received proper warrants checks will be mailed today to the following school districts in payment for vocational education in connection with national defense:

Bristol Borough School District, $5,116.65; Quakertown Borough School District, $4,700.

Cat Grins at Firemen

(By "The Stroller")
A cat looked down and grinned at members of the Bristol Consolidated Fire Department, last night, when they prepared to rescue "Tabby" perched about 30 feet up a pole on Bath street.

Just as the firemen were about ready to take her from her perilous perch, the cat gave a leap and dropped the 30 feet to the ground and "burned" up the roadway as she scampered away.

SOME FEW RETURN "HIGH" RATED CARDS TO REGISTRARS HERE

Requests Made for Revision
Downward of Gas
Allotment

TOTAL OF 2439 ISSUED

Incorrect Reports Change Figures From Those Announced Yesterday

Following the trend of many others throughout the rationing area, holders of some "X" and high "B" cards have returned them to the registrars for revision downward. This has occurred in several instances, here, according to those in charge of the registration.

The total number of "X" cards distributed by registrars located at Jefferson avenue and Wood street schools during the past three days, was 274; the number of "A" cards, 955; "B-1", 235; "B-2", 165; "B-3", 780.

The total number cards of all classes issued at Jefferson avenue building was 1495; and at Wood street school, 1034; and for the three day period there were 2439 given out at the two centers.

Incorrect reports on figures turned in yesterday from the two centers made an error in the total listed for the first two days. The entire total for the three days; the full period for issuance of cards, in 2439, state the registrars.

Art Pieces Displayed By Juniors at A Hobby Show

The Bristol Junior Travel Club conducted a hobby show last evening following the regular business meeting. A number of lovely art pieces were displayed by the members in the club home.

The Juniors will conduct a dance on Saturday evening, May 23rd, at the Langhorne Country Club. It is suggested that members "double-up" for transportation. The trip will not require more than one gallon of gasoline.

Coins Dropping Today Into the Poppy Boxes

Dimes, quarters and dollars dropped into the coin boxes of the "Poppy Girls" this year will aid the victims of the present war, as well as those of the first World War, according to Mrs. Marvel Durham, Poppy Day chairman of the Robert W. Bracken Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary.

The Auxiliary started the observance of Poppy Day today when memorial poppies are being distributed throughout the city by Auxiliary members. A large corps of volunteers is working under Mrs. Durham's leadership to work the entire day bringing the flowers of patriotic remembrance to everyone in the city.

"This year," said Mrs. Durham, "the poppy not only honors and aids the men who defended America 24 years ago and their families, but also those defending America today and their families. Funds collected on Poppy Day will be used in the work the Legion and Auxiliary are doing for the disabled of both wars, and for needy families of men in the service as well as those of veterans."

"The Legion and Auxiliary have had 20 years of experience in aiding service men and their dependents. They are able to make every dollar do maximum service in this field. Their volunteer workers have had long training and know the quickest and best methods of bringing relief to veterans and their families found in need."

"Victims of the present war are naturally turning to the Legion and Auxiliary for aid, and we want to give them the benefit of our service. The increased burden calls for increased funds. We hope that the public will be generous on Poppy Day this year because for the poppies comes the principal means of support for our work during the entire year ahead."

FALLSINGTON

A visit was paid by Bennett Strait, Stroudsburg, formerly of Fallsington, to friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Carter recently entertained at dinner, Miss Mary P. Carter, Morrisville, and Mrs. Louise White Watson, Fallsington. Later guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Coghlan and daughters, Betty and Patty, Stony Hill Road; Mr. and Mrs. George L. Whorton and children, George and Carole, of Edgely; Mrs. Charles Jones and son David, Bristol; and William English, Croyston.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodward Carter and son, Woodward, were recent visitors of Mrs. Kalapos, Trenton, N. J., and dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Voorhees Werts, of Mill Road.

INJURED IN FALL

John A. Downs, 1007 Radcliffe street, sustained a severe fracture of the right arm, above the elbow, yesterday, when he fell in the bathroom at his home. Following X-rays taken by a local physician, Mr. Downs was removed to Abington Hospital, where additional X-ray pictures will be taken today.

GENERAL GRANT AND JAPAN

However many persons in this country may have failed to estimate properly the rising military might of Japan, it now turns out that Gen. Ulysses S. Grant saw the situation clearly.

Richard Bennet Hubbard, governor of Texas from 1876 to 1879 and minister to Japan from 1885 to 1890, told in his book, "The United States in the Far East," of a visit that he had with General Grant one year before leaving for his assignment to Japan. General Grant had visited Japan while on a world tour and had been royally entertained by the Japanese emperor and people.

In his book, Mr. Hubbard quoted General Grant as having said that what impressed him more than any other thing was the progress of Japan in the "arts of war."

"While in Japan," said Mr. Hubbard, "the general had the opportunity of becoming familiar, as he did, with the military and naval establishments of the country. Of course, he did not go into details but he did say to the author that, from the standpoint of a soldier, this people had accomplished more in the last third of a century in establishing an army and navy, justly commanding the respect of the world, than any other of the powers of the earth had accomplished in the same number of years before that time."

"He saw their drills and their movements by sea and land, their life and discipline in camp and field, and their instructions in the imperial military and naval colleges, similar to our own at Annapolis and West Point. From these opportunities and observations he arrived at the conclusion that the time would come, before a decade had passed away, when all the great powers would see the verification of his opinion of Japan's prowess."

It is hardly necessary to add that the great powers finally saw it.

ARMY BUTTER

American ingenuity has scored again. All culinary adventurers, whether experienced or novice, have known the irritation of trying to keep butter solid without refrigeration.

Following laborious experiment, the Army has found that, with addition of a small amount of hardened fat, butter will keep almost indefinitely without refrigeration. This is particularly advantageous in consideration of the fact that when an army is on march, refrigeration is not always possible. This new kind of butter is guaranteed to remain solid in temperatures up to 114 degrees.

In addition to keeping solid, the new butter is reported to be just as nutritious as any other butter. The new discovery may not be applied commercially for some time, and may call for some revision of laws to protect butter against adulteration. But in time it should increase the use of butter.

When Japan has lost the war and the Nips in the Philippines face the problem of how to get back home through waters controlled by the United States, they will be so sorry they ever thought of "conquering" the islands.

The people are advised by Washington to pay their debts during the war. To drive its point home, Washington doesn't have to go far for a horrible example.

There is a definite impression that Japan's rising sun encountered quite an eclipse in the Coral Sea.

Britishers Living Under "All-Out War"

atoes and carrots are expensive and not plentiful. Twenty-five cents and more for a cabbage and fifty cents for cauliflower are ordinary prices. Milk is rationed to three pints a person per week.

The average man finds it impossible to get fruit, for it has virtually vanished from the stores. He finds fish expensive and scarce except for dried salt cod, of which he is heartily tired.

His bread is brownish in color, made from standard flour containing all the vitamins that were extracted when flour was bleached.

He cannot get cream, for the sale of cream is forbidden. If he likes cookies, they must not contain cream nor be leech with sugar. Chocolate candy is virtually unobtainable. Soon it will be standardized, faintly sweetened.

When he eats a sausage, it contains only a microscopic percentage of meat, as does any other so-called meat "loaf" or "roll." Unless he keeps a few chickens in his backyard, he can only obtain a maximum of three eggs a month.

His wife finds it difficult to cook because of rationing of fats. Much of Britain's meat is now imported, boneless, which means there is little fat in the meat itself and that substitutes must be used in cooking. All canned meats and numerous other canned goods can only be obtained by surrendering precious ration "points."

If Mr. and Mrs. Average Briton eat out in a restaurant, they are restricted to three simple courses, to a fixed price.

And should they attempt to circumvent the rationing program by producing their own food from their backyard or small farm, they come up against numerous restrictions. If they have more than 50 hens, they must sell the eggs direct to the Food Ministry. They can kill only two pigs or two sheep a year for their own use.

Should the average British couple take a night off in the heart of town, they get home much poorer in pocket. Medium priced movie seats cost three dollars a pair, orchestra seats in a West End of London theatre set them back up to four dollars each. Seats at a concert cost up to five dollars apiece. Their restaurant meal would be expensive, for poor food. They probably would wear out considerable shoe leather, for the high-priced taxis get fewer and fewer as the existing fleet meets with engine trouble, tire shortages, and other ailments of the road. And they would have to be home well before midnight, for the buses and subways fold well before midnight and suburban trains are very few and far between after 10 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Average Briton haven't traveled by automobile for quite a while. There's a horse-power tax of approximately six dollars per unit of horsepower, insurance is heavy, and gasoline—only granted for essential national purposes—is 53 cents a gallon. Cops have a habit of stopping any car that doesn't look as though it is being driven on national business, while sneak-thieves have a habit of breaking open any parked car.

Finally, Mr. Average Briton has heavily reduced his smoking and drinking in recent weeks. The recent budget put new taxes on tobacco and liquor. The cheap brands of cigarettes now cost 50 cents for a pack of 20. Whiskey is scarce and almost impossible to buy, even at the new all-time high price of five dollars a bottle. Saloons usually will only serve a "single" whiskey—an English "double" whiskey is about the same quantity as a New York single.

Good wines are almost unobtainable and prices have almost no limit. Thirty dollars is easily obtainable for a bottle of good brandy. Cigarettes are so short that it is nothing unusual to find a dozen cigar stores with none on sale.

And if Mrs. Average Briton drops a cup or saucer, breaks a stewpan, or damages her furniture, it is for her a major tragedy. Crockery is irreplaceable; furniture is scarce and very high-priced.

Even her weekly hair-do and manicure has been affected. Nail polish is scarce, expert help steadily disappears ment officials do not themselves understand. Either that, or they are unable to explain. What they have done is to make a series of conflicting, confusing and misleading statements which have muddled the public mind instead of clearing it.

The Great Game of Politics

MR. HENDERSON says one thing; Mr. Ickes says another; various bureaucrats chime in with others and the publicity agencies rush out a lot of bewildering releases. Some inspired journalistic and radio spokesmen assert that the restrictions will all be relaxed in a month; others declare that in a very short time they will be made more rigid. We are told on one hand that there is plenty of gasoline and that the rationing is in order to save rubber and get the cars off the roads. We are told on the other hand that the gasoline shortage is very acute, due to the shakings by enemy submarines and military requirements abroad. And then we are told that there is no matter of transportation, which explains—not at all convincingly—why the interior of the country is exempt.

IT IS extremely confusing and spirit in the least helpful to the spirit of the people, is it too much to ask that those clothed with anthority in this matter get together, agree on the facts and then, in as simple language as can be found, have one of them, uncontradicted by the others, explain to the people what they want to do, and why and how? Is it too much to ask that rationing be made reasonable? It does not seem so, and certainly that has not been done to date. And then, too, in the matter of management, if there were some assurances that this was in competent hands, the general feeling would be better.

WHILE Mr. Ickes, Mr. Eastman and the WPB are all functioning on different phases of the problem, the actual operation of rationing will be in the hands of Mr. Henderson. This is a very large and complicated job and would seem to call for a man of great administrative ability and experience. While Mr. Henderson has been a number of things in the course of his career the record does not show that he has ever administered any business of any kind. This is true also of his assistants. Mostly, these are ardent, young New Dealers who are being better paid and having a better time now than they ever had before. But, if there is an outstanding administrator among them, no one knows who he is.

IF THIS RATIONING of gasoline and sugar is, as seems likely, to be extended to other things and to continue during the war then it would be wise for Mr. Henderson to put the practical rationing operations in the hands of the most experienced and capable administrator who can be found. Clearly with his other multitudinous duties Mr. Henderson cannot very well attend to the details of rationing himself and it is no job for a New Deal social reformer. In the issuance of so many thousands of unlimited cards in Washington the whole business got off to a bad start. That should not have been done. To repeat, the essential things about this whole rationing business are, first, that the public should thoroughly understand; second, that the rationing should be managed in a way to make favoritism, chiseling, bootlegging and unfairness impossible. It will never be satisfactorily operated any other way.

Crime at Castaway by EDITH BRISTOL

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

"Start at the beginning, Pauline." Martha's tones were soothing. The woman in the arm chair leaned back again on pillows no whiter than her face. Her voice was hardly more than a whisper, but vibrant with feeling.

"I'll start at the beginning. When Florabelle Hunt came to me she told me about her bright young brother, Harry Craven. The stars were favorable. It was in a Sagittarius aspect, I remember. I persuaded Walter Gregg to give him a start. Flora had been mixed up in some shady transaction and didn't want her brother, Harry, associated with her past, so she did not publicly claim him. But one of the reasons she liked to come to Castaway was that here she would see her brother." Her voice trailed off into a whisper. The firelight flickered on her pale face.

"Long ago I suspected that some of the money Walter gave me went to pay Harry's racing debts. He didn't know as much about the horses as he liked to make people think. But I didn't know all that was going on until I ordered the telephone extension connected." (That explained that, I reflected. The loose ends were settling neatly into place.) "A few months ago Harry brought us a gun. Said the cottage was too lonely for us to be without one. Flora used to shoot on the hills; and she had a mania for keys, too. Keys to everything she could get hold of. So I just kept my eyes open; everything was working out as the stars impelled."

"Why didn't you warn us?" Martha was reproachful. "We had all been kind to you."

"Once I sent Florabelle to warn Walter. You," she looked at me, "you stopped that. Once I sent a note to you, Martha. Once I came down—but the place swarmed with newspaper reporters and I hid in the guest house. Then I felt it was not my place to caution you. The message of the stars must come to pass."

"But about Walter's death—" "That night—the night of the storm—Harry told Florabelle that Walter might have a lot of cash on hand. She might get some, he said. She went out in the rain and was gone a long time. I waited and watched. When she came in she looked ghastly, and I saw her, through a crack in my open door, hiding the bills. Next day I accused her. At first she denied it. Then, when she saw I knew about the money, she said: 'That'll think it was Durfee.'"

Allen broke in sharply. "You assured me you never left the cottage that night."

"I never did. But if she could outwit you—"

The sheriff glowered as if there were a lot of things he could say, but none of them fit for a dying woman. Pauline went on:

"All this was while the sun was in the sign of Libra—the sign of order and justice—so I knew, when I learned Walter was killed, that the murderer would be found out in due time. Talking makes me thirsty. Might I have a drink of water?"

While Kobe brought the water we waited silently. She sipped it and went on: "I watched Florabelle every minute. She was cautious. At the drive-in market she didn't pass the bill herself. We waited in the garage and she sent a boy in his car."

"Did you want her to get away with this murder?" Lance burst out.

"I know she wouldn't. What was written was written."

"Now what about Durfee?" from Allen. "When Durfee told you, Sheriff, that he could identify the person who was hiding in the trees, Florabelle was listening. She heard better over the telephone than face to face; some deaf people do, you know."

"How do you know she was listening?"

"Because I was listening, too. She heard him on the telephone extension. But she didn't hear me come up behind her and listen in. You know how voices sometimes carry on the phone? When she heard what Durfee said, she was afraid."

"But," Lance protested, "Durfee swore to us he didn't know who was hiding in the trees."

"At first he didn't. That's one place Flora slipped. When she found she dare not pass the stolen bills, she threatened to blackmail Durfee. But that threat—that she saw him leave Walter's room—only told him who had been lurking in the shade. That's the way her threat worked out. She telephoned Harry, frantically, to meet her at Durfee's. When she left the house she was desperate . . . when she came home, a long time after, her dress was torn and muddy, her hair wet and tangled. I knew something was horribly wrong. And it must have been at Durfee's—for that much I had heard her say to Harry."

"After she was asleep I went through the crumpled pockets of her uniform—stuck in the folds where she always carried her fountain pen and thermometer were slivers of broken glass . . ."

"Then I crept over the hill, just as the sun was coming up, looked all around the Durfee place—it was uncanny the way those dogs kept barking—and, shining on the floor of the garage, were the rest of the slivered fragments of glass . . . if you had found part of them, Sheriff, the broken bits might have meant nothing to you. But if you found them all, shining on the cement floor of the garage, that must lead you to the one person around here who owned a clinical thermometer. . . . I spread them all there for you to find."

Pauline paused for breath and Allen filled the pause.

"The ink on the changed medicine label was the same as that in the pen," he said. "The analysis proved that."

Pauline continued: "The rest of the story I forced Florabelle to admit when I confronted her with all I knew. Durfee refused to give her money. They quarreled. He got into his car and she shot him. Harry came and the two of them disposed of the car and the driver, as you know."

"But Estelle was there, too," Lance objected. "Where did she fit in?"

"While the two of them were away, disposing of the car, Estelle came and waited. Florabelle drove home. Harry went back to Durfee's to see if every trace was covered. He found her there. Then Harry planted the gun and hid some of the money in the car, trying to throw suspicion on another."

"He did," Lance agreed grimly. "That's where I came in." "Then about Estelle's death—" Allen held Pauline to the story, but we could see she was fast becoming exhausted.

"I dragged that out of her. She merely changed the figure on the label. By that time she was getting an avenger complex."

"Only one thing more," Allen demanded. "You said you were responsible for Harry and Florabelle being trapped in the willows. What had you to do with that?"

The smile on Pauline's face was bitter but triumphant. "Too many people were getting suspicious, now. Harry was afraid his statements to the district attorney would blow up. He was keeping a trailer hidden in one of the unused machinery sheds at the quarry, and was ready to skip to the Mexican border."

"What stopped him?"

"I stopped him. I convinced Florabelle that the planet Mars was threatening, that they must not start until morning. Harry did not believe me, but she did. And they waited, all night, in the trees! Waited—for their fate!"

Six months later, the tremendous furore over the Gallina Valley flood had subsided. Lance Gregg was a hero, the crimes at Castaway solved, Pauline Dawson had passed beyond the earthly spell of the stars, and a new dam already was being constructed under Lance's direction. . . . Public acclaim had assured that . . .

The next morning, the minister who looked like a boxer was to drive down from the city. He knew the road to Castaway by heart now.

And he may drive down still another time if I interpret correctly the glances between Sheriff Allen and Aunt Martha. I think now, after so many years of saying "No," she means to say "Yes."

But tomorrow the clergyman is to come early. For Lance Gregg has reservations on the "Luronia," sailing from San Francisco at noon for Honolulu.

And because it will be a honeymoon, Lance warns me: "No blue diary, dear!"

also present. Others introduced included: Arthur Gibson, president of the Bensalem Club; John J. Hargrave, Bristol president; Frank Dursch, Doylestown president; Andrew Chamberlain, Morrisville president; Clayton Moyer, Perkasie president; and Wayne Steeley, president of the Quakertown Rotary Club. Dr. J. Fred Wagner, chairman of the round-up committee, was also introduced.

Other highlights besides Dr. Kistler's address included selections by the Beaver College Glee Club, under the direction of W. Lawrence Curry.

Dr. Kistler, a member of the Jenkintown club, told the group, "Now that we are in the war we must win."

"And we will have more trouble winning a peace than in winning this war," he declared.

"We won the last war but lost the peace."

"We are fighting to preserve and save the American way of life, our ideals and our sense of justice. When the war is over we want a better America and a better world."

"To accomplish this we must learn to live with other people as our brothers throughout the world. We must learn to give and take. And we must make up our minds right now that the world will need some supervision after the war. It is up to this country to take part in this supervision. In this world authority we must do what is best for the whole world and stand by the consensus of opinion."

"After all, we must live with the rest of the world, and it must be made a decent place in which the peoples of every country can live in peace and harmony," Dr. Kistler said.

The program included the following: (a) Glory Be to God on High (Tschakowsky) (b) Alleluia (Mozart), Beaver College Glee Club (Lawrence Curry, director); (a) The Wind in the South (John Prindle Scott), (b) Miranda (Richard Hageman), Gloria Marcus, soprano; (a) Through the Silent Night (Rachmaninoff), (b) Swing Low, Sweet Chariot (Negro Air, arranged by Montague), (c) Wasn't That a Wide River (Cain), glee club; address, Dr. Raymond Kistler; Malagena (Lecuna), Dorothy Grotz, pianist; (a) May Day Carol (Taylor), (b) It Cannot Be a Strange Country (Repper), glee club. Group singing was also enjoyed by those present.

Five Naval Fliers Killed

Pensacola, Fla.—Death of five naval fliers, attached to the Pensacola Naval Air Station, was announced today by officers at the station.

Three aviators were killed late yesterday when an amphibian plane crashed 20 miles south of Pensacola. Two other cadets were lost when they were thrown out of a patrol plane in which they were making a routine flight over the Gulf of Mexico, Wednesday.

OUR COUNTRY IS AT WAR!

GENERAL EDWARD MARTIN

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Pennsylvania will be called upon to furnish from its resources vastly more than any other State as its contribution in the "all out" effort. Included in this contribution—before a year passes—will probably be 700,000 of its boys as soldiers.

On May 19th Primary elections will be held for the respective Party candidates for State offices, and those elected in November will hold office for four years from January next.

ATTENTION REPUBLICANS!

IN VIEW of the tragedies this war has brought to the Democracies of the world —
IN VIEW of the enemy already destroying our shipping and killing our citizens within fifty miles of our borders —
IN VIEW of the possibility of enemy war devices bombing our industrial centers now engaged in the production of essential war materials —
IN VIEW of the possible destruction of our centers of population —
IN VIEW of possible necessary evacuation of these centers —
IN VIEW of the 250,000 men and women already organized for civilian defense, who in case of happenings above outlined, would require experienced direction of their activities —

May we ask your consideration of the type of man we should support for our Republican nomination for the office of Governor?

Would our well considered opinion help you to a conclusion?

PENNSYLVANIA SHOULD HAVE

A man of wide experience in the management of the civilian affairs of our State.
A man of experience and efficiency in handling the details of Party affairs.
And, above all, a man of proven ability and experience as a soldier.
Fortunately the age limit of sixty-two years removed General Edward Martin from the command of combat troops, and later the war department made him available to be a candidate of his Party for the office of Governor.
General Martin, in forty-three years of military service, rose from private to Pennsylvania No. 1 soldier, serving in three wars, was twice wounded and once gassed—his special assignment being training or fighting with combat troops.
General Martin served his State four years as Auditor General and four years as State Treasurer, thus gaining wide experience in our State's public business. In both these elections he won by Republican majorities of slightly less than a million votes.
General Martin for six years served his Party as Chairman of the Republican State Committee, winning the respect and confidence of Party leaders and successfully directing its affairs.
General Martin's nomination on May 19th and election in November, would place your State during the next four years in the hands of a safe, experienced and courageous official, in whom you would have confidence from both a civilian and military standpoint.

Faith Clarke's SHOPPING TIPS FOR BUDGETEERS

BRIDE'S STERLING: I've searched the city for a bride's sterling flatware which will be in perfect taste, enduring quality, and reasonably priced. And now I've found it—the English "Trafalgar" pattern in Snellenburg's Silver Dept. (1st fl.) A service for four costs but $19.95, a set for eight double that. The pattern is open stock and there are all sorts of lovely pieces to be bought as you want them. You'll love the graceful, hollow-handled knives, the rich "gadron" edgings. A perfect wedding gift!

NEW FURS FOR OLD: At least they'll look and feel new once you let Snellenburgs put your pelts through their famous "Vita-Pelt" fur-restoring process. Be it a coat or a neck-piece, the treatment restores the sheen, cleans, and is said to stimulate the natural oils and keep pelts from drying. Wonderful! Linings are cleaned and freshened with sizing. A new coat lining guaranteed for two seasons costs but $15. An expert will advise you as to remodeling for 1943, and no storage charge is made when repairs cost $25 or more. Do investigate this reliable service. You won't regret it! (Balcony above 2nd fl.)

WORRIED ABOUT MOTHS? It's nice to know that there's an expert who can out-general any moth hatched, and who will give you, free, the benefit of her wide combat knowledge. Mrs. Yates, a consultant on moth control, is to be found in Snellenburg's 3rd fl. Housefurnishing Dept. Mrs. Yates will tell you how, inexpensively, you can protect clothing against moths, or even how both moths and larvae can be killed if they have already attacked your household. Certain and different methods and preparations are effective for different purposes, such as clothing, blankets, carpets, furniture, etc. Visit this Housefurnishing Dept. and learn!

OSTRICHES. That's just what most of us are, so far as air-raid preparations go. Making a will doesn't make a man die, nor does buying blackout curtains bring a wave of bombers! Be sensible and buy now some of the cleverest little blackout curtains invented. One tack top and bottom and they're hung! Flameproof, from 30x54, 69c; 39x72, 89c; 48x72, $1.09; 48x84, $1.29. Red cords and rollers—smart. Du Pont treated. Snellenburg's 1st fl. Stationery Dept.

P.S. When you can't come to town, this good shop will permit free ordering telephone calls from all five, ten, and fifteen cent points in Penna. Simply call Enterprise 1-0160. Similarly, New Jersey patrons may call Camden WX-1150. Nice arrangement? Faithfully, FAITH.

APPLESAUCE! "The best I ever tasted—bar none!" What next before the millennium? When a man makes a remark like that about a prepared product, he means it. Applesauce as good as his mother's now comes in a cellophane bag—believe it or not. Bits of apple about the size of peas require simmering for about twenty minutes. A pound requires the adding of about twelve cups of water, so it makes a heap of sauce. Packages come at fifteen cents a quarter pound or forty-nine cents a pound. You'll have to taste to believe—it's luscious! Snellenburg's 1st fl. Food Store.

A "FLURO" KITCHEN! Light up every nook and corner of that kitchen and see the work go faster! Now you can have "Fluorescent" cool lighting for summer in your very own home. Of course, it's good for winter, too. Costs less than regular electric lighting and is so much more efficient and modern-appearing. Flattering, too—not at all like the rather ghastly "daylight" type of lighting. Install it yourself. Plug into an ordinary outlet. Grand on the eyes and for the eyes. Uses A.C. Complete with two 24" bulbs, $7.95. Modernize! Snellenburg's Lamp Dept., 4th fl.

DECORATORS' CURTAINS: Beacon nets are perfect in taste and effectiveness, and I never saw such a wide collection as is featured by Snellenburgs—in their 4th fl. Upholstery Department. These lovely draperies can be used for windows or for doors. All heavy cotton, they come in innumerable clever weaves and colors, also combinations. From about 72 to 81 inches long. Generous widths. Prices vary, from $1.29 to $6.95. See.

HIS APPROVAL will bless both you and a "Franklyn" shirt, once you introduce him to that exceptional garment. Men even enjoy shopping for "Franklyn" themselves on Snellenburg's 1st fl., inside the 12th and Market Sts. door. Absolutely cut for comfort and long wear, the "Franklyn" shirt compares favorably with $2 and $2.50 shirts in other makes, yet—amazingly—is priced now at only $1.65. Grand materials. Many cuts and colors and white. Sizes from 13½ to 17½. Sleeves from 32 to 35 lengths. Wrinkleproof collars, ocean pearl buttons, pockets, gathered backs, pleated sleeves, etc. Men and wives are buying 'em by the half dozen!

"Mother" and "Son" Believed To Have "Reimbursed" Selves During Absence of Employer

inches tall, and weighs 145 pounds. He has light brown hair, blue eyes and a light complexion. He is slender in build and very erect, well-mannered and intelligent.

After the couple had been hired, they asked McGimsey if he would haul their baggage to Pineville. This he did, with some suspicion since the baggage consisted of 12 pieces of luggage, some brand new.

"Mother and son" arrived in Pineville last Saturday and were placed in two rooms in the servants' quarters.

Sunday afternoon the McGimseys decided to leave for Virginia in their station wagon to get some dogs. They left "mother and son" in charge, with permission for them to use the McGimsey pleasure car, a Buick sedan, if they wanted to ride some place to see a movie.

When the McGimseys returned Tuesday night, they found the house in the same condition as they left it with several exceptions.

McGimsey forgot his wrist watch—an expensive one—when he left for Virginia. When he looked for it upstairs, it was still missing. A minute later he found the servant's quarters empty and the dozen pieces of luggage were gone. A look out the window revealed the fact that the Buick sedan, too, had been stolen. The silver was missing also.

The McGimseys immediately notified the Doylestown sub-station of Pennsylvania Motor Police and Private Andrew J. Kutney was assigned to the case. The teletype was pressed into service at once.

The two gave their names as Mrs. Iris H. Crews and son, Lawrence W. Crews. Mrs. Crews gave as a reference a man in Cape Cod, Mass., whom she told the McGimseys she had worked for three years. She also told them that her husband had died in 1929 when they were "living on a small farm in southern Michigan."

Police find that last Monday night about 8 o'clock, "mother and son" stopped at a store in Pineville where they purchased two quarts of oil.

Information Center To Be Opened Monday at New Hope

NEW HOPE, May 15—An information center is to be operated in this village, the heart of Bucks County's artists' colony.

The center, housed in the one-time store room of New Hope Art Associates' Gallery, and manned by volunteer workers, will open on Monday next.

As set up by the Council of Agencies, the center will collect and distribute information and data for all participating organizations. Filling a long-felt need will be the inauguration of a "Town Calendar," noting all regular meetings, as well as special programs and events taking place in the area.

A special list of volunteer workers is being compiled, and will be drawn on by various groups in need of additional help on whatever projects they have undertaken.

Today's Quiet Moment

Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

Almighty and Eternal God, our heavenly Father, as the flowers of the field raise their faces toward the heavens that they might receive health and strength and beauty from the sun, so we raise our faces toward Thee, that we might receive from on high that strength of purpose which will keep us on the Highway of Thy Will, and that beauty of character which will enable us to conform to Thy Pattern, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

Monumental hilarity is the order of the day at the Grand Theatre, where "Ball of Fire," Samuel Goldwyn's new comedy-romance, has made its local debut. Packed with novel and delightful situations, along with brilliant dialogue and the work of an ideal cast headed by Gary Cooper and Barbara Stanwyck, the new offering ranks among the best fun films ever produced. Besides being a real treat, it affords its stars two of the finest characterizations they've had to date.

Cooper portrays a stuffy, ultra-serious professor of English who, with seven picturesque colleagues, is writing a new encyclopedia. Miss Stanwyck is an entertainer at a night club of Martin Eden" opens today at the Bristol Theatre. Based upon Jack London's thrill-teeming novel, world-famous as his greatest, the new film is said to be as lusty, as brawling, hot-blooded and human as anything ever screened, a motion picture stirring as a storm at sea, tempestuous as a tropic hurricane. Don "Red" Barry, cowboy star currently appearing in "The Apache Kid" at the Bristol, is a graduate of the Texas School of Mines where he played football and polo.

dard and Director Elliott Nugent, the trio responsible for that smash laugh hit of a few seasons ago, "The Cat and the Canary," the new laugh special, "Nothing But the Truth," is slated to arrive today at the Ritz Theatre.

For comedy, Bob Hope is just about the hottest thing on the screen right now.

TO OUR CUSTOMERS!

Our Country is at war! Conservation of tires, trucks and gasoline will help win it. The Government is anxious that consumers buy fuel supplies well in advance of actual needs.

You can help by ordering your fuel at least one day in advance. Our deliveries then can be planned and made in the most efficient manner.

Please do not specify delivery at an exact hour, but arrange to have someone at home, so that delivery may be made at any time during the working day.

WATCH your fuel supply and order ahead. Your co-operation plus our co-operation, plus everybody's co-operation will mean VICTORY.

Likewise, the same applies to small building material orders, especially one- and two-bag orders of cement, etc.

And, on our part, we promise prompt delivery at all times.

ED HEAD, BROOKLYN PITCHER - ONE OF THE BETTER LOOKING YOUNG PITCHERS IN THE NATIONAL LEAGUE

ST. ANN'S MOVES INTO DEADLOCK WITH DIAMOND NINE FOR SECOND PLACE IN BRISTOL SUBURBAN LEAGUE

St. Ann's A. A. moved into a deadlock with the Diamond team for second place in the Bristol Suburban League by registering a 10-5 triumph over a patched-up Badenhausen team last evening on the Saints' field.

It was also the second mound triumph for Bill Salerno and places him among the leaders in the circuit. Although Bill allowed nine hits, he felt quite comfortable as his mates tabbed a 9-0 lead in the first four frames.

St. Ann's touched Harvey Rigby for 11 safe hits but in justice of Rigby it must be stated that the support accorded him was of the worst variety.

Only the last four markers made by the winning combination were earned. The only real help Rigby received in the line of support was the playing of Jake Paul in left field.

The boiler-makers made six of their nine hits in the last pair of innings when Salerno was taking things easy or was weakening.

Lou Sassi, with a double and triple, led the St. Ann's batters while Murphy and Munster each connected for two hits for the losing group.
